Subject: New Pretreatment Professionals Question & Answer Meeting

Dear NC-PC Member:

The North Carolina Pretreatment Consortium (NC-PC) is sending you this letter in order to express our appreciation in having you as a member of the NC-PC. An individual membership like yours is our number one asset and makes our organization the active and viable non-profit organization it is today.

Professionals who manage or operate a Pretreatment Program or Fats, Oils, and Grease Control Program in NC are eligible to be members of the NC-PC and enjoy all of its benefits such as:

1. Opportunities to become more informed and aware of local and state pretreatment issues
2. Opportunities to better communicate and network with NC-PC members and pretreatment professionals
3. Providing assistance and technical support for pretreatment training and certification
4. Providing a unifying voice in the operation and advancement of pretreatment programs in NC
5. Helping to maintain high ethical standards in pretreatment operation
6. Providing a professional organization for pretreatment professionals

Being a member of the NC-PC has its advantages; however, being an active member has added rewards. Active members develop strong networks with peers throughout the state as well as regulatory authorities. Active members can join and participate in various work groups such as education development/training, regulatory focus, workshop development, conference planning, pretreatment position papers, and even seek executive committee office in the NC-PC.

An objective of the 2010 NC-PC Executive Committee is to reach out to pretreatment professionals who are new to our organization and help with any pretreatment related questions or issues.

Two informal meetings are scheduled below to allow those who have been NC-PC members less than 5 years or those who have less than 5 years pretreatment experience ask any Pretreatment questions that you need help with and to learn more about the NC-PC.

Two meetings are scheduled below along with RSVP contact information. Directions and detailed information will be forwarded upon your RSVP.
